

Irene Sotiropoulou

PhD Candidate (Department of Economics, University of Crete)

E-mail: isotiropoulou@econ.soc.uoc.gr

Curriculum Vitae

Irene Sotiropoulou is a PhD candidate at the Department of Economics of the University of Crete since February 2009.

She has graduated from the Law School of National & Capodistrian University of Athens (NCUA) (1996-2000) and she holds a MSc degree in International & European Studies at the Department of Politics & Public Administration of the NCUA too (2000-2002) as well as a Postgraduate Diploma in Development Economics at the University of Manchester (2002-2003).

Her PhD dissertation is titled "Exchange networks and parallel currencies: Theoretical approaches and the case of Greece" and consists of both theoretical study and field research. Related publications are available at http://economics.soc.uoc.gr/html/static_content/econ_phd/EN/Sotiropoulou/scv.html.