

EAFTELETO Symposium

“National Languages and Terminology in Higher Education, Science & Technology”

Athens, Greece, 7 November 2013

Marjeta Humar

Marjeta Humar, PhD, Independent Humanities Specialist, is a researcher in the Terminological Section of the Fran Ramovš Institute of the Slovenian Language, the Research Centre of the Slovenian Academy of Sciences and Arts, Ljubljana, Slovenia.

Marjeta Humar's research focuses on Slovene lexicology, terminology and terminography. From 1974 to 1991 she participated in the development and completion of four volumes of the Dictionary of Standard Slovene, published in 1975, 1979, 1985 and 1991. Since 1991, she has been working on Slovene terminology and terminological dictionaries. She organised international conferences on terminology and edited the collections of papers from the conferences Terminologija v času globalizacije (Terminology in the Time of Globalization (2004)), Nacionalni jeziki v visokem šolstvu. Zbornik prispevkov z Mednarodne konference Jezikovna različnost in nacionalni jeziki v visokem šolstvu (National Languages in Higher Education. Collected papers from the International Conference Language Diversity and National Languages in Higher Education (2009)), Terminologija in sodobna terminografija (Terminology and Modern Terminography (2009)).

Marjeta Humar is the author, co-author and editor of several normative terminological dictionaries with explanations and their equivalents in English, French, German and Italian (papermaking (1996), law (1999), mountaineering (2002), gemology (2005), geography (2005), theatre (2009), electronics, electrical engineering and telecommunications (2010), pharmacy (2011)). She is currently working on the following projects: urban, legal, music, general technical dictionaries and antonymy in Slovenian terminological dictionaries.